This country consumes about twenty millions worth of patent medicines every year. Patent medicine makers and undertakers have a common interest.

Chief Justice White asked to be excused from speaking at the Yale alumni dinner, on the ground that he spent most of his life in studying how not to say anything. It is a wise man who makes a speech when he has a chance.

The president wants the democrats of Massachusetts to nominate Secretary Elliott for governor. The events of three weeks ago persuade the president to believe that he has no particular use for the secretary of war. Now if A-ha-ness would only nominate Cleveland, the president would be relieved of a heavy burden.

The Georgia legislature met in biennial session on Wednesday. It is a good time to meet in July. The hot weather will prevent a long session. If the Wisconsin legislature could meet in the hottest month of the year, when outside work is pushing, the members would do less loafing and would not be so reckless in introducing worthless bills.

Jeff Davis, in his fourth of July speech at New Orleans, told his hearers that the south fought for principle, and therefore the men who rebelled against the government in 1861, were not rebels nor traitors. This reflects the sentiment of the gentleman who lives in a granite building on the west end of Pennsylvania avenue, Washington, D. C.

Hiram Miller, the treasurer of Perry county, Ind., has disappeared with about $65,000 of the public funds. It is supposed that he has joined the American colony in Canada. The treasury vault has been opened and found to contain nothing but old records and a few "coppers." Miller's predecessor was a defaulter for $30,000, and served a year in the penitentiary.

In the constitutional convention at Salt Lake, Tuesday, the proper committee submitted an article prohibiting bigamy under heavy penalties, and providing that the pardoning power of the governor shall not extend to these offenses except as its exercise is approved by the president of the United States. A clause was also reported making this session unrepeatable and unamendable save by consent of the national congress. There is said to be no doubt of the adoption of these provisions by the convention.

Dr. DeBassett, of Chicago, announces that he has perfected his air ship that is prepared to carry a party of 200 persons to the north pole at the rate of seventy miles an hour, after taking a preliminary trip over Europe and Asia to impart confidence to the minds of the passengers. The vessel is a huge cylinder, to which is attached the passenger car. The ascensional force used is not gas, but a partial vacuum, and the propelling force for horizontal motion is in compound exhausting propellers which displace about 300,000 cubic feet of air a minute, giving a mean velocity of seventy miles an hour. Dr. DeBassett's scheme is pronounced perfectly practicable by Mr. Colbert the astronomer of The Chicago Tribune, and other scientists who have investigated the matter. Notwithstanding first-class scientific endorsement, Dr. DeBassett has as yet been unable to induce the Chicagoans to invest money in this air ship, although he offers the magnificent inducement of a ride to the north pole in the car, free of charge, to anyone contributing $1,000 to the enterprise.

Massachusetts has added some features of stringent prohibitory laws to its high license system for the purpose of making it more efficient. The new law passed very quietly through the late Legislature of that state, but it is peculiar legislation and the progress of the experiment will be watched with interest. It provides for closing by injunction places where liquor is illegally sold. The theory of the new law, says the Chicago Journal, is a simple one. Liquor laws of all varieties are peculiarly liable to evasion. Those who violate them may do so in such a way that, while there is no reasonable doubt of their guilt, they can not be convicted, owing to the failure of evidence and the uncertain action of juries. The new Massachusetts law is not open to these uncertainties. Evidence must be such that which would be required to secure a verdict from a possibly prejudiced jury is regarded as sufficient to establish a case for injunction. A district attorney who is not satisfied with the action of a jury in such a case can file an information asking for an injunction; or, if he fails to do so, any ten legal voters can join in a petition for that purpose. Probably this new weapon will be speedily employed against the various classes of nuisances enumerated in the act. The process which it offers is simple, and promises to be effective. It is in most respects similar to the injunction law which has worked in Iowa for a year or more with the certainty of a steel trap, and has been more potent in closing saloons than all other instrumentalities combined.

The North American Review has for its leading article a paper by Henry George on "The New Party." Mr. George holds that the old parties of back politics are dead, and that the party of political economy is now in order. "Why Am I a Free Reluctant?" is answered by the Rev. O. F. Frothingham. The Hon. George W. Julian, who was appointed surveyor-general of New Mexico, by President Cleveland, to look after the "land-stealing" in that part of the country, contributes startling facts and figures on the subject. Dion Bonicault treats "The Decline and Fall of the Press," with special reference to its influence on art and the drama. He thinks that fame is no longer genuine. It is made by advertising. It is bought and paid for, like so much flour or pork.

"My Personal Finances," by President Garfield, is the third and last part of Edmund Kirke's series of Garfield's autobiographical notes, used by Kirke in writing Garfield's life.

Ignatius Donnelly concludes his paper, "The Shakespeare Myth," pointing out the grounds of his claim for "Bacon Cipher." The paper is illustrated by facsimile pages from the Shakespeare folio of 1623. There are several other quite important and valuable articles in the Review for July, which are worthy of study.

A question which has lately attracted much attention in New York, where the problem of regulating the liquor traffic has been uppermost, is that as to the right of hotel keepers to supply their guests with wine and liquors at their meals on Sundays. The relation of this question involved the construction of the phrase "as a beverage," used in the act of 1857. That act provides that "no tavern or hotel keeper, or any other person, shall sell or give away any intoxicating liquors or wines on Sunday or upon any day on which a general or special election or town meeting shall be held, to any person whatever, as a beverage." The question was whether liquor furnished to hotel guests at their meals was liquor furnished as a "beverage." Judge Lawrence, sitting in supreme court chambers, lately decided against the hotel keepers, but his decision has been overruled by the general term. The court holds, in effect, that liquor supplied with meals is not supplied as a beverage. Judge Lawrence, in deciding the case at chambers, made his judgment turn on the fact that the license held by the hotel keepers prohibited them from selling or furnishing liquor on Sundays. The general term says upon this point:

A critical examination of all the statutes relating to the subject matter demonstrates that the power of the board of excise is limited to the granting or refusing of licenses. If the license is granted, the statute regulates the rights acquired by it, the restrictions to be observed, and the punishment for each violation of its provisions. The board of excise, therefore, can not enlarge or diminish these rights and obligations, or interfere with them in any way. It can not insert in the license limitations or restrictions which are not in the statute; if it does so the license is void. Hence the clause in the license issued to the proprietors of the two hotels in question absolutely prohibiting the sale of liquor for certain days named therein is, as the result of our construction and interpretation of the statute, unauthorized and nugatory.

WHY WOMEN ARE NOT BETTER EDUCATED.

At a recent commencement exercise at an eastern college it was said by one of the orators that the higher education of women was being neglected both in this country and in Europe. In no sense of the word this is true. The belief has long existed, especially by old fogies, that the true mission of women was to "mind the babies and run the kitchen." But there has been substantial progress made during the last twenty years, or even during the last ten years, in the cause of female education. A very careful statistician made a recent report which shows that there are in America 1,601 institutions devoted to higher education. Attending these are 163,570 young men and but 30,587 women. These figures are very unsatisfactory to the reform. To be sure, a large measure of encouragement is afforded by the gradual removal of obstacles in the way of sending young women to college. In every civilized country notable strides have been made in the extension to them of first-class advantages. Colleges devoted purely to female education are rapidly increasing and are financially well supported. The German universities are generally open to them. In France the reform has received such an impetus that even agricultural and mechanical schools for girls have been recently started. A magnificent female university at Moscow has been arranged for and will soon be built, while here in America young women are accorded exceptional facilities.

Now the question is why this disproportion in the number of male and female students? It cannot be for the lack of opportunity for girls, because the female seminaries, academies and colleges in this country are not half full. There seems to be a prejudice against sending girls away from home to be educated, and yet the statistics show that in towns and cities where educational institutions are located, the proportion of males over females attending these institutions is almost three to one.

The great impediment to the higher education of women, is the cold and very foolish theory that women must either be employed in the kitchen, or nurse babies, or become so accomplished in shallow things as will fit them for what may be called a "society ornament"—a life which is practically aimless, profitless, and a total failure. Young men are educated because they want to make something of themselves. Young women are not educated in proportion that young men are, because they do not expect to need an education. As a rule, they expect somebody to support them when they grew up to womanhood, and therefore the time and hundreds of dollars spent in obtaining a higher education are time and money recklessly appropriated. When the sentiment becomes general that it is just as necessary for a young woman to have mental training as it is for a young man, then there will be more girls go to college. Public sentiment largely controls this question, and there will not be much of a change for the better until public sentiment changes. The best thing for a young woman is good mental training. It is better than the allot. It is better than aimless, unprofitable society life, in which there is no possible good. A good education will make a woman strong in all things commendable and in the harvest of life she will reap more than a hundred fold.

There ought to be more of that spirit which has led a young woman in the eastern part of this state to travel 33 miles a day for the last four years, in attending school, and during that time she has not missed a school session.

AN INDIANA LYNCHING.

A MOB AT PERU TAKE SUMMARY VENGEANCE.

The Crime of the Victim—A Murderous Mother—Dakota Vandalism—Other Crimes.

Peru, Ind., July 7.—Dr. North, a prominent physician and chief surgeon of the Valued, St. Louis & Pacific railway, was shot and dangerously wounded Wednesday noon by John Christensen, a Swede of communist principles. Christensen, enraged because his stepdaughter had married against his will, went to his house and asked her to come into the yard. She consented and he brutally beat her. Neighbors interfered, and the man went into the woodhouse, firing a shot. Dr. North, supposing the man had shot himself, stepped to the door and opened it, when Christensen shot him in the region of the heart. North is rapidly sinking. The Swede is in jail and there is talk of a lynching.

LATER.—John Christensen was taken from the jail at 12:35 a. m. by a mob and hanged. At 12:15 twenty-two masked men marched to the jail and demanded the keys. The demand was refused and the lynchers battered down the door leading to the jail. Then they broke through the two iron doors leading to the cell where Christensen was confined, and seizing the wretch took him on a dead run down Broadway to the bridge crossing the Wabash river. In exactly thirty minutes they had him hanging from the center beam of the bridge. The last and only words the wretched wretch uttered were words of resistance from the officers of the jail, but they were powerless in the face of the determined mob. The first time Christensen was struck by his captors he roared with both hands, so holding himself. He was taken down and his hands were tied. Then he was again run up to the beam, where he is hanging at this hour. Fully 1,000 people witnessed the hanging, and three cheers were given with the loudest voices. The vigilantes at the finish marched up the street in a body, and in a side street fired a volley from their revolvers and then dispersed. The vigilantes were well organized and went at their work in a perfectly systematic manner. Dr. North is in a critical condition.

An Indian Mother's Crime.

Joliet, Ill., July 7.—A handsome woman, aged 25 years, was received at the prison Wednesday on a ten-year sentence. She is a Swede, and her name is Mrs. Christensen. A few years ago she came to this country leaving a 3-months' illegitimate child with her parents. She lived in Syracuse, where she was courted by and engaged to marry a young man. Several weeks ago her brother came over, bringing her 3-year-old boy, a bright little fellow, and left it with his mother, going into the country to get work. The young mother strangled her little boy and deposited the remains under the house, where a people living there had just sent it to the country with a friend. The brother returned and wanted the child. His suspicions were aroused by the cruel young mother's story. Search was made, the body of the boy found, and the girl sentenced to ten years in prison.

A Forger Jailed.

MARION, Ind., July 7.—About three months ago a young man giving the name of Charles Pitzer, came to this county from Ohio, and entered in the employ of E. J. Croviston, a farmer, residing ten miles southwest of town. About a month ago he married Miss Jennie Brown, one of the prettiest girls in the neighborhood. Pitzer defrayed his wedding expenses by disposing of two notes, each for $50, one bearing the name of E. J. Croviston and John S. Pence, and the other the name of John S. Pence and William Brumfield. Yesterday the notes became due, and it was discovered that they were forgeries. Pitzer was arrested and did not deny his guilt. He was placed in jail in default of $500 bail. His young wife is heart broken over the disgraceful affair.

Trouble With Indians Fanned.

PRITCHARD, D. T., July 7.—Trouble is fanned at Fort Sully and Bennett with the Indians in case soldiers leave for the East before the 15th infantry arrives. Some thirty-five hundred Indians are located around these posts, and if left with a handful of men there is no telling what these treacherous Sioux will do. It is just learned on information from one of the officers (and Western people do not doubt it) that the Indians would without any hesitancy take charge if they see the militia leave. A large number of these Indians now residing on Cheyenne agency figured in the Rawlins massacre.

Was He Murdered?

CHICAGO, July 7.—A man named Herman Kraft died under suspicious circumstances yesterday at his home, No. 7 Blucher street. Kraft was shot in the abdomen July 4 and died after about thirty-four hours. A physician made inquiries as to the manner in which the wound was inflicted, but could obtain no information from Kraft or his friends. A burial certificate was refused and the matter referred to the coroner.

Not the Person Wanted.

LANSING, Mich., July 7.—The prisoner arrested at North Lansing Tuesday night as Harry McManis, or Matt Kennedy, implicated with Cleveland for robbery and the murder of Detective Fulligan, claims to be Jesse B. Lamb, a farm hand at Waco, Tex. He has worked about there, off and on, for some time. The officials here do not think he is the man wanted. Detective Needham, who arrested him, is a green young man from Sandusky, Ohio.

Brutal Asylum Attendants Indicted.

New York, July 7.—Attendants McHugh and Cleary, who were lately placed in custody by the verdict of a coroner's jury, which accused them of beating an inmate of Ward's Island Insane asylum named George Farnish so brutally that he died, have been indicted for manslaughter by the grand jury. The prisoners were arraigned in the General Sessions court Wednesday and pleaded not guilty.

Murder of a Woodchopper.

LONDON, Ohio, July 7.—Wednesday afternoon two woodchoppers, employed on the Bonner farm, eight miles west of here, named Andrew Chaffin and George Scott, quarreled. Chaffin attacked Scott with an axe, striking him in the breast. The blow cut the heart in two. After further mutilating the body Chaffin escaped and has not yet been arrested.

Another Frank for the Museums.

Mr. SREINZKY, Ky., July 7.—A man with a mangled leg is one of the curiosities of this country. He is Thomas Williamson, a well-to-do farmer living a few miles from here. About six months ago Mr. Williamson noticed an unusual hardness in his left leg and a gradual loss of feeling. The hard place continued to grow until the leg finally lost all feeling and appeared like a wooden limb. Physicians examined it and pronounced it a case of cancerous degeneration or porphyria, for which they could do nothing. The leg is now as hard as stone and presents the appearance of sculptured marble. A tap on it with a hammer gives out the same sound as a blow on a block of marble.

THE COURSE OF LOVE.

Together at the garden gate.

And hugged and kissed and sighed.

A sudden flash of golden hair.

A sudden flash of golden hair.

Who sought her for his bride.

And they were wed. Still at the gate.

She stands until the hour is late.

But he has with her not.

She waits, the while her heart is burst.

20 minutes in which he returns.

About three-quarters of eight.

Too often it is true, alas!

The heart that is quickly passed.

And then the little wife.

At home is left alone at night.

The husband at the club gets tight.

And then—beats his life.

KEPT IN HOT WATER.

This Complaint Is Made Against the Rev. C. M. Arthur by His Wife.

A Divorce Case that is Attracting Attention in Many Quarters.

SOME OF THE DETAILS.

For two days past Judge Bennett has been listening while several lawyers raked over the family matters of the Rev. C. M. Arthur. Mr. Arthur is a prepossessing young man who has quite a number of friends in this city. He was married in the east but afterwards removed with his wife to Evanston. From here he went to Dakota, but Mrs. Arthur refused to go with him, claiming that his treatment was unbearable. A short time ago she began suit for a divorce, and it is this case that is now on trial.

According to the complaint, Mr. Arthur was in the habit of scolding and finding fault continually. He stayed until one or two o'clock at night, and then abused his wife for not sitting up for him. He accused her of being impure and several times hired people to act as spies upon her actions. Most of the time, Mrs. Arthur claims, the persecutions, while most unbearable were of such a petty nature as to be difficult to particularize, but at times they manifested themselves in violence. She was often afraid to go to her husband's presence.

The evidence taken to-day covered most of the points spoken of in the complaint and attracted considerable attention. Among those in the court room were several ministers, some siding with the plaintiff and some with the defendant.

Mr. Arthur is understood to be a man of considerable means. Among other things he is the inventor of an improved paper box, which is in use throughout the United States and which furnishes quite an income of itself.

Mr. Blaisdell left home for England the first of June 1885, having been absent one year and one month. He returns greatly improved in health, and well pleased with his European trip, especially at his old home at Blaisdell.

He is cordially greeted by his many friends in Evanston.
